Our house rules

First greet the cats from a distance: blink slowly with both eyes when a cat catches your gaze. This is how you reassure cats. Staring means you might attack them.

When a cat approaches you, first show her your "passport" (in other words let them sniff your hand). If it's okay with the cat and she would like to be petted, she will press her head up against you. If not, you should look for another furry friend.

For those who really want to lift something: there is a Basic-Fit nearby! You can just leave our cats on the floor because they don't like being picked up.

Cats sleep between 14 to 16 hours a day on average, so do not disturb them while they sleep.

We know you might be tempted to feed our cats or let them lick up crumbs off the floor. Some cats are on a special diet, so please don't give them our delicious brownies, cookies or popcorn and just enjoy it yourself.

Children are just as nice as cats, but try to keep them in check - for the sake of the cats and the safety of the children.

How can you help us socialise the cats?

- Take a toy at the entrance
- Challenge the cat by moving the toy. Don't hold it right in front of their face!
- Think like a bird: hide the toy or let it fly around
- When the cat is about to catch its prey, move the bird to another spot
- As soon as the cat's eyes lock onto the prey, the hunt has begun!
